Bring it in

"Beautification Week," sponsored by the city of West Sacramento, is now underway.

As part of the event, residents may drop off any non-hazardous waste for disposal, free of charge, at the city's Tower Court reception site near the east end of West Capitol Ave. (on the south side of West Capitol).

Today through Friday, hours are 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Saturday, residents may drop off waste between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

"We had 85 cars come in yesterday," worker Kryss Rankin, an employee of city hall, said Tuesday. "For the first time, we're surveying them. We're asking them what part of town they come from, how they heard about this, etc."

Rankin said that "pretty much anything" can be dropped off at the site, as long as it is solid and non-toxic. Examples of things the collection site can't accept include paints, solvents or motor oil.

That kind of material may be dropped off at the Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day sponsored by Yolo County on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. That event will be held at the Yolo County Landfill near Davis, on C.R. 28H east of C.R. 102. For more information on hazardous waste collection, call 757-5566.

City Hall employees LARRY VON KAENEL and KRYSS RANKIN found themselves working in an unusual office on Tuesday: a household waste collection point sponsored by the city to help residents beautify West Sacramento. The center on Tower Court will continue accepting rubbish through Saturday.

The West Sacramento collection center hauled in 171 tons worth of waste from community members last year.

City officials request that people driving in with materials pre-sort them according to type, such as wood, metal or tires.

For information, call organizer Denise Kotko at 373-5893.

Man sought in parking lot shooting Monday morning

West Sacramento police are searching for a suspect named "Carlos" or "Carlita" in connection with the shooting early Monday of a 23-year old man at a local nightclub.

The shooting occurred at about 2:00 a.m. in the parking lot of Ortega's, 4205 West Capitol Ave., according to the police department. Police arrived to find victim Jesus Vergara Delgado surrounded by several people.

Delgado, who had been shot one time with a handgun, died at the UC Davis Medical Center at about 7 a.m.

The handgun was recovered from the scene.

Witnesses reported that a heavy set Hispanic male suspect had fled the vehicle in a red car.

"We located the red vehicle in Sacramento," said Sgt. Ray Hensley. "It is being processed. The owner is being interviewed."

The owner is not believed to be the suspect. Police have not determined a motive for the shooting, said Hensley.

Anyone with information is asked to call Detective Tom Bowler or Sgt. Hensley at 373-5870.

Murder not suspected in two local deaths

The bodies of two men were discovered last month in different parts of West Sacramento. The deaths were not connected, and neither appeared to be the result of homicide.

On Aug. 11, police recovered the body of Michael Black.

"He was found at 3rd St. and West Capitol Ave.," said Sgt. Ray Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Dept. "He was found underneath a tree. The coroner determined that the ultimate cause of death was something like a stroke."

On Aug. 31, the body of another man was reported in a field at 3rd and F streets.

"It was an apparent overdose, but we have not gotten the toxicology report. No signs of other trauma were found during the autopsy," said Hensley.

PortFest '96 described as huge success

Chamber of Commerce director estimates 12,000 or more showed up

■ Local chamber may have raised close to $10,000 over weekend at annual festival

"This is the best PortFest we've ever had," said Chamber of Commerce director Steve Roberts on Tuesday. "We had 12,000 to 15,000 people over the weekend, although these are just estimates."

PortFest '96, the annual event celebrating the Port of Sacramento in West Sacramento, lasted from Friday evening to Sunday afternoon. Boat tours, carnival rides, food and information booths, music and entertainment were on the menu.

"There was one glitch, though. The PT boats didn't show," said Roberts.

But other boats did -- a replica of Christopher Columbus' boat "Nina" and a California Maritime Academy ship, "The Golden Bear," drew crowds.

As a fundraiser for the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, the event also appeared to have been successful.

"I'm sure it was a moneymaker," said Roberts. "We haven't got the numbers yet, but I would say that the chamber netted between $7,500 and $10,000."

The event was chaired by Sue McGowan, whose employer, the Bank of America, was a partial sponsor. Roberts said he hopes to convince McGowan to chair next year's PortFest as well.

West Sac to consider joining stadium board

Sacramento has asked West Sacramento and other surrounding jurisdictions to support Mayor Joe Serna's plan to bring major league baseball to Sacramento's downtown, and the West Sacramento City Council will be asked tonight to issue a resolution expressing that support.

West Sacramento mayor Greg Potnick said he had met with Serna in a West Sacramento conference on the issue.

"I made clear to Mayor Serna that there were some major environmental issues -- traffic spinoffs, noise spinoffs," said Potnick. "He was aware of some of the issues such as the I St. Bridge relocation (if a site is chosen at the old Southern Pacific railyards). I also told him West Sacramento might be interested in supporting a ballpark, but we're not interested in financing a ballpark. He understood that. They're going to be looking for some kind of revenue bond financing."

"Our participation doesn't mean we're going to be committed to financing, but I think it's important to protect our interests. We're not obligating ourselves to anything by joining this authority, " added Potnick.

The proposed resolution, which has the blessing of West Sacramento's city staff, cites a Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce study saying the ballpark will bring $69 million in new dollars and 2,000 jobs to the area.

The resolution would also express the city's desire to participate in the Sacramento Ballpark Authority, composed of area governments pursuing the ballpark idea.

Sacramento does not have a team lined up to use the stadium, although it has explored the possibility of luring the Oakland A's or an expansion team.

Privatizing Lighthouse

By Steve Marschke

An on-again, off-again plan for the city to privatize a number of streets within the Lighthouse project along West Sacramento's northeastern (Broderick) riverfront will come back to the city council tonight.

If staff and the developers can iron out their differences, the city will be asked to adopt a resolution approving the "abandonment" of the city streets.

Conceived even before the city incorporated in 1987, the Lighthouse Marina and Riverbend Development Project has struggled. Only one home has been sold, and the owners later moved out. Most of the

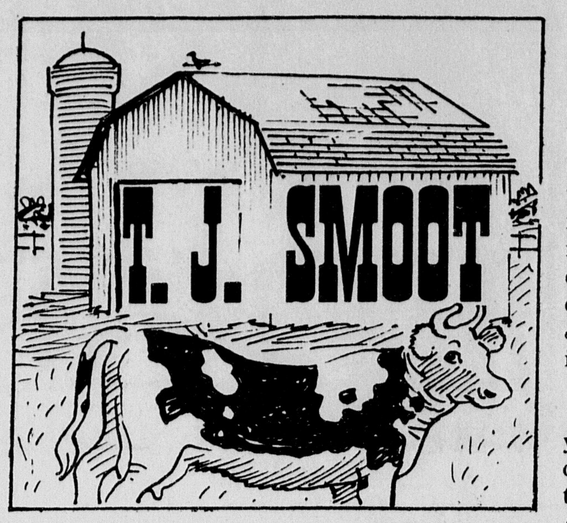
Becoming Dad

'T.J. Smoot' is the pen name of a neighbor of yours. His thoughts appear here every other week.



Recently, I was building a cyclone fence on the side of our house when I first noticed IT. IT was my bare, bright white, hadn't-seen-a-tan-in-8-years ankle. It was a different ankle from that tanned and taut joint that I used to sport, zipping around campus on my ten-speed.

The last time I'd really noticed this phenomenon was when I was a teen in the '70's. I used to hang around with (note: not help) my dad as he gardened. We would crouch on our haunches and mix up the Miracle Grow to pour on a rubber tree or some other plant that I can't pronounce (but it starts with a chrysa). As we sat in the shade, I happened to notice his ankle, which was white, unlike mine. I remember thinking it odd he didn't have a tan. And now, seeing that I have the same type of ankle he had was a chilling slap of reality. Why? It links me with my dad. Not just congenitally, but with his "dad-ness." I mean, I've always thought of my dad as...well...my dad. You know, from my point of view as a kid, he was older and real responsible. On the other hand, I was youthful, vigorous and carefree. It never occurred to me that I lived in the lap of luxury, only having to perform my single onerous task of emptying the trash (how DID it always get full so fast???). My dad didn't have time to jump on a bike any time he wanted to, jog out to the park to throw the football around, or lounge around in the sun because he was always at work or fixing up our house.

And here I am, working on my career, fixing up our home, making time for the little Smoots, and gradually growing aware that I have less and less time to sit on my fanny and watch the tube or do other superfluous activities. I usually go to bed wiped out, and the morning comes way too early. I've resigned myself to the fact that I'm turning into my dad, with a Smoot twist, but turning into my him nevertheless. It used to bother me, but I don't mind it anymore. Actually, it's kind of comforting to know that I'm carrying something of my dad with me, and I really like the idea that Jr. Smoot will someday discover that he's turning into me.

This was all fine and dandy. Then one day my younger brother surprised us by showing up at our front door. He had just flown in from Florida to work on an Air Force F-15 up at McClellan AFB, so we were able to spend a week together. Now, Scott is ten years younger than I. He is precisely 5'10 3/4 inches tall, just like me. He weighs 180 lbs. I'm fatter than that. He has no gray hair. My head is a gray hair factory.

One evening, I watched him play, tickle and rough-house with Jr. Smoot who thought he was in Seventh Heaven because the session lasted way longer than five minutes and didn't end with "Daddy's tired. Let's stop." Scott insisted he was taller. I knew from previous measurements that I was in fact the exact height he said he was. So we stood back to back. Scott was 1/2 an inch taller. I've heard that as people age, they shrink. This was another revelation that I was growing older and farther away from the physical prime of life.

This season of life is kind of funny. Not "ha ha" funny, but "this is really an interesting concept, and I had no idea this was going to happen, and if someone told me, I wouldn't have believed him anyway because it's just too wierd." It's not always pleasant to begin discovering the limits of your mortality. That's a pretty heavy thing to say.

But what I mean is, finding that limits to your career, time, energy, and roles are more confining than hoped for can be a real shock. Now, spring for me is pleasant memory, summer is in full swing, and fall doesn't seem as far away as Diego Garcia anymore.

But I take comfort in knowing there are life cycles, things to pass on to the next generation, and answers to deep ponderings. And I really don't mind white ankles...but I will make it a point to wear shorts and shoes without socks more often.

Water pressure drop:

Culvert installation leads to problem

Southern West Sacramento residents may have experienced fluctuations in water pressure during the past week, according to the city's community development department.

This was due to "unanticipated problems involved in the relocation of a main water line required for the construction of the new expanded storm drain culvert under Jefferson Blvd. near the Club Pheasant," the department stated.

Temporary bypass is hoped to alleviate water pressure problem in Southport

A temporary bypass was installed Monday to alleviate the trouble.

There still may be some water pressure fluctuations in Southport during the next three weeks. Residents have been asked to reduce lawn sprinkler system use as cooler weather permits, in order to use less water.

Friends seek help for local family to pay medical bills

The family of one-year old Hannah Schroeder needs help with the girl's medical bills.

Hannah was stricken with viral encephalitis in July and was hospitalized for two weeks with seizures and brain swelling before being released on her first birthday.

But Hannah has suffered a relapse that brought complications now requiring 24-hour care. She will be moved to Children's Hospital in Oakland.

HANNAH SCHROEDER

Her mother, Tammy, has exhausted all her medical leave with her employer, Sacramento Radiological Associates. Father Tim has opened Schroeder's Shoe and Boot Repair Shop in West Sacramento, and is trying "to get the business off the ground," said friends.

The family and friends have sponsored a fundraiser to help pay the bills. The dinner/dance will be held on Friday, Nov. 15, beginning at 7 p.m., with raffle prizes and with music courtesy of FM 102.5. Tickets for the dance only will be $6, and for the dinner and dance will be $10. Tickets must be purchased in advance, and may be reserved by calling Kelli, 371-2747, or Helen, 371-5244.

In the meantime, donations are appreciated, and may be sent to the Hannah Schroeder Trust Fund, c/o US Bank, 1401 Merkley Ave., West Sacramento, CA 95691.

SPORTS

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The 49ers are back in action this week after sitting out the third week of the season with a bye. San Francisco travels to Carolina as nine-point favorites. Steve Young is recovering from a slight pulled groin muscle, but look for Young, who has not thrown a touchdown pass this season, to open up the passing attack. The 49ers' defense is ranked No. 1 in the N.F.L.

49ers 31, Panthers 10.

I told you last week the Raiders were going to win their first game since last November. Yes, the Raiders needed a touchdown by 340 pound defensive tackle Jerry Ball to beat Jacksonville 17-3. The defensive played well, holding Jacksonville to two of 13 on third down plays!

The offensive is struggling big time, but look for the Raiders to score a bunch of points on the banges up Chargers in Oakland. If the game is not sold out by Friday, the game will be blacked out again!! Plenty of good seats available -- call BASS for ticket prices.

Raiders 35, Chargers 17.

The Monday night game between the Colts (3-0) and the Dolphins (3-0) will be one of the best games of the season. If Colts running back Marshall Faulk (out with a sore foot) plays, I like the Colts, if not, take Miami!!

Colts 24, Dolphins 23

For your baseball fans, the Giants (25 games back) and the A's (13 games back) are looking at rookies and are waiting until next year. But if you're a Dodgers or Padres fan, hold on to your seats. With two weeks remaining in the season, the Dodgers and Padres play each other six more times! The Giants can spoil the Dodgers' season with a couple of upset wins in their three-game series in Los Angeles next week.

See ya next week!!

Sacramento Knights players Randy Soderman and Carlos Bordinhao took time out of their busy schedule to visit the Round Table Pizza parlor on Jefferson Blvd., West Sacramento, on September 10 to sign autographs, to hand-out prizes, take photographs with the kids and to talk to local youth soccer coaches.

Soderman comes from Glendale, Arizona, where he previously played in the CISL with the Arizona Sandsharks. He also earned NCAA Division II all-Fair West Region honors as a junior at Grand Canyon University in Phoenix. He is currently the youngest player of the Sacramento Knights, at age 22.

Carlos Bordinhao comes from Las Vegas, Nevada, after playing the past two CISL seasons for the Las Vegas Dustdevils. He was also a member of the Las Vegas 1994 CISL Championship squad and played the 1993 campaign in Mexico with Tijuana of the International League (outdoor). He also is a two-time Nevada State Players of the Year while at Eldorado High School and currently holds the state's record for career goals (99).

Currently, the Knights trail by a half-game in the Western Division behind the San Diego Sockers. The two tames will close-out the 1996 regular season at San Diego on Saturday, September 28, in what could amount to a Western Division title match. Last home game of the regular season is Sept. 27.

Play starts for West Sac 'Twisters'

The fun and excitement for the West Sacramento Girls' Softball Major Division has finally begun. The winter season playing schedule for the West Sac Twisters is as follows:

September 22 at home against Orangevale; September 29 at Elk Grove; October 6 at Yuba Sutter; October 13 at Woodland; October 20 at home against Carmichael; and October 27 at home against Nevada County.

The team will play two games each Sunday. The first of the two will begin at 1 p.m. All home games will be played at the Alyce Norman/Bryte School softball complex.

On November 9 and 10, the Twisters will be participating in the "Down and Dirty VII Tournament," closing-out the season. The Twisters have appreciated the positive support from the fans.

Call to find out how you can help get your team the news coverage it deserves. 371-8030.

High school rowing team: new members

The River City Rowing Club High School team is now recruiting for the 1996-97 racing season. Both males and females in grades nine through 12 are needed (students weighing less than 110 pounds are needed as coxswains).

An open house will take place at the River City Rowing Club, Port of Sacramento, on Saturday, September 21 at 9 a.m. Parents are welcome to attend the open house, and you may bring a friend, too. Financial aid is available. For more information, please call 371-7723.

The team trains for the interscholastic sport of "crew," with four or eight-person teams of rowers led by a coxswain.

Frosh football shuts out Marysville

By Chuck Robinson

Last Thursday, the River City High School freshman football team beat Marysville 28 to 0. In the first quarter, River City scored on a 30-yard run by Malfred Shaw, but the conversion failed to lead 6 to 0. Later in the first quarter, Shaw again scored on a 7-yard run and Marshaun Tate ran the conversion to lead 14 to 0. In the second quarter, Rich Cardenas scored on a 13-yard run and the conversion failed to lead 20 to 0. The next score was on a 10-yard run by Robert Cervantes and the conversion run was good by Eric King to lead at half time 28 to 0. River City offense racked up 273 yards rushing and 39 yards passing for a total of 312 yards. Rushing for River City was Cervantes, with 9 carries for 105 yards; Shaw, 9 for 82 yards; Tate, 9 for 29 yards; Cardenas, 3 for 26 yards; King, 7 for 26 yards; Clay Harrell, 3 for 8 yards; and Prax Pich, 2 for 2 yards. Quarterback Brooks Marino completed 2 for 2 passes for 39 yards.

The defense was the toughest I have seen in a long time. They allowed only 1 yard rushing in the first quarter and 0 yards passing. They gave up 9 yards rushing in the second quarter and 0 yards passing. They held Marysville to -1 yard rushing and 0 yards passing in the third quarter. Lots in the fourth quarter, with all the subs they gave up 25 yards rushing and 44 passing. Marysville had a total of 34 yards rushing and 44 yards passing for a total of 78 yards.

"This victory was a result of all of the hard work the players did in the pre-season," commented head coach Chris Baker. "My coaching staff had them ready to play and deserve a lot of credit. They have put in some long, hard hours in preparation for last night. It was a most rewarding start for the season." Coaching staff for the freshman team includes Gabe Jimenez (offensive line, defensive ends, outside linebacker); Willie Brown (middle linebacker, defensive tackles); and Tyrone Johnson (defensive secondary).

I would like to say that this coaching staff has done an outstanding job and don't forget the outstanding job head coach Chris Baker has done with these kids and his staff. He is a great leader.

This Thursday, the team will travel to Colfax. Game time is 6 p.m.

News-Ledger Editorial

'Litehouse' (& other musings)

"Lighthouse Marina & Riverbend Development" never was meant to have a "lighthouse." Plans for a "marina" have been backburnered and there has been very little "development."

Now it looks like there will be little public access, if plans to privatize and gate the community continue. Overall, the deal is a lot less sweet than it first looked a decade ago.

Good to see the city of West Sacramento touting "Location, Location, Location" at its booth at PortFest over the weekend.

"Location" remains the city's biggest existing asset when courting interests from the region -- proximity to the state capitol, to a river and a port.

If and when the city fulfills its destiny, it will be "location" that drives this success.

On the other hand, where in the redevelopment agency's annual report was a discussion of the agency's mistakes, including overeager pursuit of Lighthouse, the Southport Industrial Park and paper plant, and the Margaret McDowell Manor?

Such a report ought to examine both the successes and failures of the public agency. As long as city officials look at there own track record with rose colored glasses -- while the public knows better -- there will be a credibility gap.

Remember the local sewage crisis, where the city went from denying there were any problems to claiming credit for spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on improvements, while pretty much skipping the admission that things were seriously messed up?

A little less sugar-coating, please. Mistakes are sometimes acceptable, but we need to examine them and learn from them.

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors exercised dubious judgment with their rewording of a description of a ballot measure they opposed.

Voters often base their "yes" or "no" vote at the polls on how the ballot measure is described on the ballot, so this is a big deal. The supervisors took the liberty of approving a description of this measure (Measure C, limiting gravel mining) which said that it "permits gravel mining in Cache Creek, and allows for commercial gravel mining outside of Cache Creek."

A judge moved the wording back to reality, and corrected the supervisors' description of their own competing ballot measure as well.

It's a shame that the supervisors are taking the gravel issue so personally, and that, with the campaign contributions some of them have received from the gravel interests, they may feel they have to.

At least one of them ought to know better than to follow this "chicken guarding the henhouse" path by tampering with the description of ballot measures they oppose.

Supervisor Mike McGowan, you remember, was part of a West Sacramento City Council majority which tried to do the same thing with the QUAD initiative they opposed in 1990. A public outcry caused them to backtrack before it went to litigation.

Letters to the Editor

'Marna Miller on:'

(The following comments were submitted by city council candidate Marna Miller.)

Political Reform Issues

Have the city fund a page of newspaper which asks officials and politically active individuals what their ideas are and their solutions (50 word answers). Done regularly, so new ideas are aired and no one must spend money yet all may be heard. Certainly, you are able to defend or promote your ideas if you are already in office and maybe the newcomers views' will constantly push the old timers into improving. At least the voters would hear and digest more information.

Voting Processes

Ask everyone to send in their ballot, even if they are not going to vote -- noting they do not wish to participate. Diminishing the potential for voter fraud by recommending that they make every area with a blanks so no one else could fill in the blanks or the ballot.

Include a local VOICE sheet, where voters may say why they do not wish to vote, or something about an issue which officials may view for information and public opinion, keeping identification confidential by making it a separate sheet of paper.

Election Time

Allow candidates three letters addressing issues, which the city sends to all registered voters, all letters set up the same, so substance will matter over style.

Have a townhall forum with preset questions and a set amount of time to answer for each candidate. Then give a few minutes to each candidate to promote their own new ideas or remedies, or alternatives. Solution based in nature, topical and process oriented, creating an information base for voters to gleen different views, methods and options. Or allow each candidate to submit three questions each and everyone answers all the questions on a three-minute basis. Or you could do the same thing through the press or mailers so each candidate has his exact reply already printed and no advantage is given through a bias of some kind.

Elections are to serve the public interest. The public is interested, but unable to spend a lot of money to get "unbiased" information because money starts directing candidates very early. Money does not corrupt a decision, but money does allow style and quantity to have an influence over the public's perception. Money is not the problem, but money does could issues. By starting these procedures, we become the first community to instigate reform that is meaningful. Giving, "We The People..." a platform, once again.

Gravel spin

I feel that statements made by certain Yolo County Supervisors and reported in the Woodland Daily Democrat and the Davis Enterprise on August 29 need to be clarified.

As we know, politics seems to be about putting a positive "spin" on everything that happen so that it always looks as if one or one's organization is in the right. This, or course, gives one's position, deeds, etc. validity to the uninformed, even when it could not be further form the truth.

The truth of the matter is that Citizens for Responsible Mining did indeed prevail against the cash-heavy Yolo County Aggregate Producers Association and county-provided legal mouthpieces. Judge Mock ruled in favor of the Citizens for Responsible Mining's complaint against the County of Yolo for biased wording of the ballot statements of the two competing gravel mining ballot measures.

Judge Mock not only ordered the language for the ballot measures changed, but wrote the changes himself, after both sides could not agree on the wording. In addition, the judge ordered Yolo County to pay the legal fees for the Citizens for Responsible Mining.

Clearly, that would not have been ordered if the county government had not once again been remiss in the impartiality that should give validity to its existence.

For certain supervisors to say they are happy with the outcome of the hearing makes one wonder why more equitable ballot statements weren't written initially, saving the county money in legal fees. If seems that, once again, we have incompetent legal advice form County Council, Charles Mack.

At this point, I don't know how much the Citizens for Responsible Mining's legal fees are. However, I do know that it is money the county need not have spent had the Board of Supervisors behaved properly and either allowed the Citizens for Responsible Mining or an impartial party to write the ballot statement for Measure C in the beginning.

I am hoping that this latest example of the folly of our county government makes the voting public aware that those who are holding elected office are not necessarily looking out for our interests. We need to look out for ourselves and demand that our elected representatives do our bidding.

Remember, county government is not looking for our interests in putting forth Measure D. Measure D is dirty, dangerous, deceptive, dishonest and degrading to our farmland and water supply.

Measure C is common-sense, responsible mining and good stewardship of the land.

Gravel

Thoughts about the ballot measures C (citizens initiative to limit off-channel mining on Cache Creek to gravel above the water table) and Measure D (county/gravel miners proposal to give gravel miners permits for deep-pit mining down to clay under 30 to 50 year entitlements in return for restoring the damage done).

It has been very disappointing that the supervisors did not keep to the high ground in affirming their gravel mining plan as the best environmental news ever but chose to play games with the wording of both their Measure D and the Citizens initiative C.

Challenged in court, the measures now clearly state the facts about the initiative and proposal and are described with an equal number of words. Our supervisor and others announced that

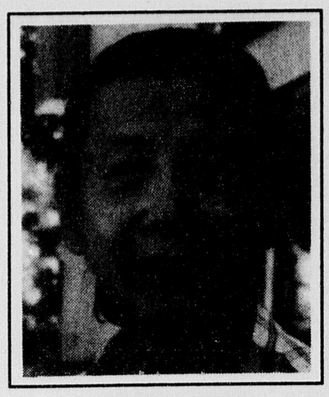
Broderick artist wins blue ribbon



LUND C. TIM

West Sacramento architect Lund C. Tim has won a blue ribbon in the watercolor exhibition "WASH" (Watercolor Artists of Sacramento Horizons, Inc., at the 18th annual juried show at the Sacramento Fine Arts Center.

Tim, a resident of West Sacramento's Broderick (northeastern) neighborhood, will attend a reception this Sunday at the center, 5330-B Gibbons Dr. in Carmichael.

He has received numerous blue ribbon awards for his work in oils, watercolors, graphics, mixed media, pastel and collage media.

As an architect, he has designed projects for Caltrans, the Governor's Office, the California State Police, the California Highway Patrol, the Department of Social Welfare and the State Board of Equalization.

the county/gravel miners "won"; yet the court costs are being paid by the county (that is, us -- the taxpayers).

In voting November 5, many of us will remember that the county/gravel miners were so insecure about their position that they attempted to put a misleading statement on the ballot.

The developers have worked in close partnership with West Sacramento's redevelopment agency, to little avail.

Last year, they successfully requested that the city release them from the obligation of building a marina as a condition of the partnership.

The project was originally planned to be a non-gated, high-end residential development with riverfront access and a Sacramento River marina.

Gravel ballot measure: you be the judge

Both a citizens group and its opponents -- the Yolo County Board of Supervisors -- said they were pleased with a judge's rewording of a gravel mining ballot measure description late last month.

The action was requested of Judge Stephen Mock by the citizens group, Citizens for Responsible Mining, whose Measure C on the November ballot seeks to restrict gravel mining in the west area of the county. They say their measure will help protect groundwater and preserve the environment.

The citizens group protested the county's description of the measure to be placed on the ballot. The supervisors are on record in opposition to Measure C, and have placed their own ballot measure, Measure D, on the ballot to compete with it.

Mock re-wrote the contested wording himself, when the two groups couldn't agree.

The original language was called unfair by the citizens group, for using the word "permit" in this context:

"Shall the Initiative Regulating Commercial Mining, which amends the Yolo County General Plan, permits commercial gravel mining in Cache Creek, and allows for commercial gravel mining outside of Cache Creek above the ground water table, be adopted?"

Judge Mock re-wrote the description to the following:

"Shall the Initiative Regulating Commercial Mining, which amends the Yolo County General Plan, allows limited commercial sand and gravel mining above the ground water table outside of Cache Creek, while prohibiting sand and gravel mining below the ground water table and prohibiting in-channel mining in Cache Creek, other than mining rights vested by law, be adopted? This measure also requires an approved reclamation plan, surety bonds, and a five-year permit review, as required by existing law."

Wording for the county's competing ballot measure was also adjusted.

'Recycle' your blood at blood drive sponsored by city on September 26

The City of West Sacramento is sponsoring a blood drive for the Sacramento Blood Foundation on Thursday, September 26, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The drive will be located at Sam Combs Park on Stone and Jefferson Boulevards.

Blood donations touch the lives of patients suffering from cancer or leukemia, new mothers and babies, hemophiliacs and people with other blood diseases, burn and accident victims, and more. Because each pint of blood can be separated into its various components, each pint can help up to three patients in need.

Giving blood is safe -- you cannot get AIDS or any other disease through the donation process. Sterile needles are used only once and then discarded. Donors must be at least 17 years old, weight at least 100 pounds, and be in good health.

To thank and encourage donors, the city's blood drive will be holding a raffle. Prizes were donated by these caring businesses: Radio Shack, LaBou, McDonald's, Goodyear, Blockbuster Video, and Sacramento Blood Foundation, and West Sacramento's Recycling Division.

For more information, or to make an appointment, please contact the City of West Sacramento's Recycling Division at 373-5893.

Police log

Sept. 7, 9:02 p.m.

An officer witnessed a 50-year old Sacramento man in a fight with another man. He had struck the victim in the mouth, causing a laceration. The suspect resisted arrest and had to be brought to the ground. He was charged with battery and resisting arrest.

Sept. 11, 6:58 a.m.

A 31-year old Sacramento man was arrested at his place of work for making terrorist threats against a West Sacramento man. The suspect had threatened the victim with bodily harm, said police, and had followed through with the threat by hitting and kicking the victim and pounding him into the ground.

Sept. 12, 4:50 p.m.

A 34-year old man was arrested, and identified by the victim, after a purse snatching on Merkley Ave.

Sept. 12, 10:10 p.m.

A male West Sacramento Police Dept. officer, working undercover on the anti-prostitution detail, picked up a 40-year old Third St. woman, who agreed to perform a sex act for money. The woman was arrested and booked.

Sept. 13, 7:20 p.m.

A security guard at a supermarket saw a 24-year old West Capitol Ave. man take a bottle of liquor from a shelf, conceal it in its pants, and exit the store. The suspect was detained for police and arrested.

Sept. 16, 7:40 a.m.

Dept. of Fish and Game personnel saw a car parked illegally on the levee road near 3rd and A streets. A police officer found a Placerville man inside attempting to use narcotics. Heroin and syringes were found, and the man, who was on parole, was booked. His vehicle was towed.

Sept. 14, 8:35 p.m.

An officer contacted a 28-year old West Sacramento man regarding a reported incident of battery. The man showed a false SSI card and false resident alien card, and was arrested.

Sept. 16, 9:41 a.m.

The local social security branch reported that someone was using the identity of a dead person for fraudulent purposes.

Sept. 16, 10:45 a.m.

Ceramic pots were reported stolen from in front of a Park Blvd. home the previous night.

Sept. 16, 12:58 p.m.

A large floral arrangement and a planter, valued at $60, were reported stolen from in front of a Betty Way home the previous night.

Sept. 16, 4:50 p.m.

Checks were reported stolen from a local convalescent hospital.

Sept. 16, 9:51 p.m.

On Douglas St., a mother reported her 12-year old daughter was out of control and was trying to hit her. She had earlier threatened her mother with a stick. The two were separated, and the mother said she would call again if there were further problems.

Sept. 16, 10:19 p.m.

A Harbor Blvd. market employee said some juveniles had taken a swing at him, and promised to return and finish the job, after he refused to sell them beer.

Sept. 16, 10:27 p.m.

An anonymous caller said four men were walking along West Capitol Ave. trying to sell drugs, and that they told him if he bought from anyone else, they would kill him.

Jefferson workshop

■ Opposition surfaces, but city planner adamant that part of Jefferson must be six lanes to handle future traffic projections

By Steve Marschke

A plan to turn the southern reaches of Jefferson Blvd. in West Sacramento into a future six-lane road drew flak at a Sept. 5 meeting of the West Sacramento Planning Commission. A handful of residents spoke against the project, and several hundred names were on petitions opposing it.

But the opposition is not yet enough to derail the expansion plan.

"Basically, the direction we had (from the commission) was to schedule a workshop for the public," said Steve Patek, the city's community development director. "What we've heard is concerns over the loss of (private) property and over more difficult access to property, as well as opposition to more noise and congestion."

Some landowners fear the city will force them to sell parts of their property that currently border Jefferson Blvd. in order to add the new lanes.

The planning department is inviting residents to submit their questions on the six-lane issue -- preferably in writing -- so that these concerns may be addressed at the future public workshop. A date has not yet been set for this workshop, said Patek, although a city staff report targets mid- to late October.

Patek said that future development will necessitate the additional traffic lanes, which are planned to run between Marshall Rd. and a new road to the Daniel C. Palamidessi Rd. Bridge (now under construction) which will connect north of Linden Rd.

The expanded area lies within the Southport area of West Sacramento, south of the Port of Sacramento's barge canal -- a low density area which someday is expected to be home to over 30,000 people.

Patek was asked if the planning department still viewed the expansion as necessary. Jefferson is currently only two lanes in Southport.

"If we could get everyone on Jefferson to agree not to drive a car, and to ride a bus instead, no problem," he responded.

The matter is scheduled for discussion at tonight's meeting of the city council, but staff has recommend that this discussion be postponed until after the public workshop can be scheduled.

Happy 50th!

Roy "Red" and Elaine McKinnon celebrated their 50th anniversary on Sept. 14.

They headed to Las Vegas for a few days to try their luck on the tables and have some fun, and friends and family have offered their congratulations.

Transit authority bill becomes law

Governor Pete Wilson has signed AB 2420, creating a transportation district to replace the Yolo County Transit Authority.

The new district is intended to be better suited to oversee improvements to the region's transportation system, but was opposed as a "new layer of government" by local county supervisor Tom Stallard, who represents Woodland and the northwestern part of West Sacramento (Bryte).

West Sacramento city government supported the proposal, but not all other cities did.

S.A.T. practice

The Community Services program at Sacramento City College is offering a 12-hour course designed to improve high school students' performance on the SAT. The course will be held on four Saturdays in October and November: The first session will run October 5, 12, 19 and 26, and the second session will run November 2, 9, 16 and 23.

Water taxis double—

By Melinda Posner
Community Relations
West Sacramento Redevelopment and Housing Agency

The River Otter Taxi Company recently expanded its fleet to meet the demand for river taxi service on the Sacramento River. Otter Two joins the Otter One in transporting passengers from Old Sacramento to restaurants up and down the Garden Highway.

Since its maiden voyage Memorial Weekend, the River Otter Taxi Company has been a resounding success, with most weekend runs ;up the river filled to capacity. Otter Two made its debut in late August and will run during the evening Monday through Friday and all day Saturday a;nd Sunday, doubling the number of trips and passengers and cutting in half the time between departures.

Otter Two was purchased from a taxi service operating on the Susquehanna River in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. The boat is available for charter service upon request. For regular scheduling information, call 448-4333. For charter information, please call 929-9002.

The Friends of Greg Potnick are sponsoring a re-election fundraiser dinner for West Sacramento Mayor Greg Potnick on Friday, October 4, at the West Sacramento VFW Hall, located at 11th and Soule Streets. No-host cocktails are from 6 to 7 p.m., with the dinner beginning at 7 p.m., followed by a raffle. Tickets are $12.50 per person and $6.50 per child under 10 years of age. Individuals interested in purchasing tickets for the dinner or participating in Potnick's campaign may contact The Friends of Greg Potnick at 371-4894.

Marna Speech

Marna Miller of West Sacramento, a candidate for the city council, will speak during the September meeting of the Northern California Coalition for Limited Government. Miller will address such issues as privatization, public accounting for expenditure of taxpayer resources, and redevelopment projects. A member of CARTA (Californians Against Redevelopment Tax Abuses), Miller is active in the local Meadowdale Homeowner's Association, Maple/Holly Steering Committee and association with Neighborhood Watch endeavors. NCCLG will meet today at 10 a.m. at the J.J. North Restaurant located at 5999 Florin Road (East off Highway 99). The public is invited.

Senior Spin

Starting tonight, a new group of seniors will be playing "Senior Spin," the West Sacramento Senior Center take-off of the famous Wheel of Fortune TV game show. The show airs every Wednesday night at 7 p.m. on Sonic Cable TV Channel 21. The show ends with a review of activities during this summer's Senior Center Awareness Week. This includes arts and crafts displays, the Songster Chorus singing "When You Wore a Tulip," Tai Chi and Stretchersize demonstrations, country line dancing, and the Washboard Band playing and singing "Baby Face."

WOH Auditions

The Woodland Opera House will hold auditions for its premier production of its newly-formed Young People's Theatre. Auditions for A Christmas Carol will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, September 24 and 25, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. by appointment at the opera house, 340 Second Street in Woodland. If necessary, callbacks for the production will be held at the opera house on Saturday, September 28, from 9:30 a.m. to 12 p.m. Young actors ages 6-18 are asked to perform a one-minute character driven monologue and sing sixteen bars of a song for the auditions. Actors must memorize both their monologue and their song. Actors may bring a tape to sing with or singe a cappella. To schedule an appointment for an audition, call the Woodland Opera House at 666-9617.
